

INTERVIEW FOR SELECTION OF PROJECT ASSOCIATE - (Two)& PROJECT ASSISTANT (One)

ADVERTISEMENT NO. CMFRI /FRAEED/ 07/2023

ICAR- CMFRI will be implementing a research project on “Strengthening Macro-Economic Aggregate and Gross Value Added (GVA) Estimation in the Indian Marine Fisheries Sector” funded by the Ministry of Statistics and Programme Implementation (MoSPI), Government of India. The current project plans to estimate the input costs of marine fish production and analysing the economic impact of government policies and schemes. This research project is formulated with a view to ascertain the status different domains of economics, trade and stakeholders along the value chain. The study focusses on assessing the economic efficiency of fishing operations across different craft and gear combinations in various coastal states across the value chain, considering state, species, and seasonal variations. A major emphasis will be placed on evaluating the input cost of high marketing efficiency species across the different fish commodity supply chains, as well as examining consumption patterns, demand-supply dynamics, and their impact on fish price behaviour. The study ultimately aims to establish updated input cost benchmarks and assess method-wise economic efficiency to support accurate estimation of Gross Value Added (GVA) and input-output ratios for the marine fisheries sector.
